United Road Towing announced today it has launched hybrid bidding technology at its weekly auto auctions in the Chicago market that allows buyers to bid electronically via the internet!

“The goal is to link registered qualified bidders in real time along with live local bidders and allow people not able to travel or attend the auction sales in person to bid on line from the comfort of their office or home.” said Tom Tedford Sr. VP of Business Development for URT. “ This technology has existed for years in the market place primarily used by large used car auction houses and insurance salvage auctions worldwide and we are excited to launch this into the impound auction market.” URT plans to launch this technology into several of their existing markets including Phoenix, Los Angeles and Las Vegas in the coming months. "Buyers using this technology will no longer have to deal with weather, travel, or other inconveniences in attending our sales throughout the country." Tedford continued.
